Q&A: AMERICA'S NEW COVID-19 RULES FOR INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL

From the Associated Press

The White House announced this month that starting in November, new international travel policies affecting Americans and non-citizens alike will be implemented.

This article, by Zeke Miller and David Koenig of the Associated Press, organizes the changes in an easy-to-read format.

TSA INCREASING FINES

For those who don't wear masks

Last month, the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) extended the mask requirement for travelers on airplanes and in airports through January 18, 2022. And this month, TSA announced that fines for noncompliance would be doubled. The range of penalties are now $500-$1,000 for first offenders, and $1,000-$3,000 for second offenders.

“We appreciate the majority of travelers each day who voluntarily follow the requirement, but find this action necessary to maximize the protections for those who use and work within the transportation system, and to contain COVID-19,” said TSA Administrator David Pekoske. “By doubling the range of penalties, we seek to reinforce the importance of voluntary adherence.”
